LIGHT THAT KILLS PAIN.

A Patient's Experience With the New Anesthetic.

In order to test personally the new anesthetic known as the blue light system, by which tooth extraction is rendered painless, the Geneva correspondent of the London Daily Mail recently underwent an operation for the removal of a troublesome molar at the hands of Dr. Camille Redard, the Swiss discoverer of the method.

Having placed his patient in a recumbent position, the doctor impressed upon him the great importance of faith in the new process, and then commanded him to gaze steadily at an ordinary sixteen candle power electric light with a blue glass bulb, fixed within eighteen inches of his eyes.

Behind the lamp was a reflector. After covering up his patient with a large blue cloth the doctor left the room.

"I found myself gazing at the dazzling blue light, which gradually seemed to penetrate my eyes and pass out of the back of my head," writes the correspondent.

"At first I felt a slight burning sensation, which in turn gave way to one of coolness around the eyeballs.

"This feeling passed, and I felt nothing out of the ordinary except that a sensation of rest came over me, and my hands, which were trembling slightly before, were perfectly still now. My senses never left me, and I plainly heard the doctor entering the room.

"He took away the cloth rapidly, placed the blue electric light farther away, tilted the chair up slightly and signed to me with the instrument to open my mouth.

"I felt the instrument grasp the tooth and watched the doctor pull. The next instant I saw the molar before me, not having felt the slightest pain."

Jap Picture Cards of the War.

The picture post card is a never failing source of delight to many thousands, though it adds another terror to travel if the traveler have many collectors on his list of friends. But great interest will be created even among those who have not yet succumbed to the mania by the announcement in a Japanese paper that the authorities of the empire intend to issue pictorial post cards "as souvenirs of the war." The intimation is added that "the cards will be first distributed among the officers and men at the front, and the remainder, if any, will be sold to the public."

Religious Societies.

In the fifteenth century religious novelties were fashionable. Some of them abounded in absurd anachronisms. In one Abraham is represented as about to sacrifice Isaac by shooting him with a blunderbuss.

Chinese Words.

There are words in the Chinese language which have as many as forty different meanings.
